“ Hey nana. its been a long time since i have talked to you. I guess things are okay, but like you always said .... they could be better. im in ohio now. my mom is no longer in the picture just like you always wanted, look, i know my parents let you down but nana i promise you... i will not let you down. i try to talk to you every day and every night just to tell you i love you. i wish i could hear your voice again, saying sweet i love yous in my ear. you were the sweetest human being alive.. even if we didnt get along all that great. christmas was fun, i got some really cool stuff. im finally gonna try to be me again, nana. i know you always told me to be myself no matter what i went through. when i saw you in that casket.. i swear it felt like i was being ripped apart at the seams. i still hear the piano and organ music. its always playing in the back of my head. i have a lot of issues nana, and im scared i wont be able to fix them. its hard here without you by my side. you always supported me, even when it was hard to. i hear the voices telling me that you're with me and i try to talk to you, but its almost as if your voice has faded from my hearing reach. its been so long since i have been happy because you were my glue. i try not to cry every single day, just to show you im staying strong. i have a photo of you printed out into a frame, nana. i wish you could see it. i know you're in my heart which is why im still here, trying to convince myself that you will come back, but you wont. i will never see you again. i hate it here inside this cage. i need you to come back nana. i feel so alone without you. please come back.. send me a sign that you see me pleading for you. i need to know im not alone. i miss you so much. i love you forever and always. ill talk to you again very soon. fly high sapphire. we miss you.

“ John and family,

Just wanted to say how sorry I was to hear of Bobbie's passing. She was a wonderful lady, and great friend to mama when she was going through so much. She will be remembered fondly and missed. Please let me know if there is anything I can do for you in the days and months ahead.
