“ There are way too many memories to even begin to share. Our secrets, our laughs, our cries... especially losing our parents then our big sister, our fusses and fights... that never kept us apart too long, our time, and us always reminiscing about our lives...this life will never be whole without my sister. It's always just been us. Carmon Lynne McAbee was one of the funniest human beings I've ever known. One memory stands out. She had begun dabbling with her hair at 15. Well she turned it completely silvery gray. Mama wouldn't let her do anything else for 24-48 hours. She and I went to the movies and standing in the lobby- well the looks from people were obvious. After she had had enough, she started cussing at anyone who looked at her... didn't matter how old or young! I wanted to crawl in a hole. After about 10 min of this, we both started laughing and by the time we were let into the movie she was making up all kind of crap about her silver hair and most of the people around us had started laughing too. She didn't get rid of the silver hair for about a week!!
