“ We ran into one another in walmart one night . My children and I had recently went through some major life changing experiences . I was trying to put our lives back together and was really having a hard time. The two of us stood in walmart if all places and cried together ..balling doing the "ugly cry". She took the time to hear me out hug me and of course make sure I was laughing before we parted ways that evening. A wonderful lady and a pleasure to have knownher.

Michelle was such an extraordinary and amazing lady. I spent many nights that turned into mornings talking with her and of everything we shared, one thing that always stood out was
