“ Back in the day when she was pregnant with Cotton, her, Angie Pepper and I used to hang out some and she was upset because her tiny little jeans were getting too tight on her belly. Angie and I showed her how to run a rubber band through the button hole and wrap it around the button. Such a silly memory but when I called Debra crying and told her that story, it gave her a giggle. I was with that family as a part of it for a couple years but Debra, Sandy and I never stopped being that family. I loved that girl like she was my sister and we ended up being so much alike. Bright colored hair, riding motorcycles, not caring what other people thought of us. Debra or mom, you will always be my mom and I'm always going to miss my sister
