

Thomas Marvin Poag

May 28, 1946 - February 7, 2025

Thomas Marvin Poag, 78, died after many years of declining health at the family home in Spartanburg County, South Carolina on Friday, 7 February, 2025. He was the son of the late William Thomas and Annie Love Poag, and was a native of Rock Hill, South Carolina.

Tom was a faithful Christian and lifelong church member, served his country as a sergeant in the U.S. Marine Corps, retired from a successful career at Cryovac/Sealed Air, and was an alumnus of Clemson University. He was a gifted musician, a Harley-Davidson enthusiast, and enjoyed traveling the world with his family.

He is survived by his loving wife of 55 years, Linda June Fanning Poag, and his son, Ryan Thomas Poag, and many beloved cousins and friends. He sought virtue in all that he did, and his desire to seek and do God's will was evident to all who knew him.

“ My persistent memory of you Tom, is you coming out of the swinging doors of the meat lab at Cryovac, wearing a butcher's apron, carrying a big meat breaking knife, with that patented Tom Poag smile on your face. I loved being in your company because you had a wonderful sense of humor and a great sense of what was important in life and what was nuisance. You and Linda are centerpieces of so many wonderful memories from long ago, and I look forward to finding you in heaven. Meanwhile, this world, and I, am poorer for your absence. Ron Idol
